

Elevator Pitch

Carlos E. Rodriguez

Hi, my name is Carlos Rodriguez; I'm currently a freshman at the City College of New York, majoring in economics. As a first-generation Honduran student, guided by my curiosity, versatility, and passion, I've been involved in social research; I have experience in data collection and pattern analysis. As well as organizing communities for a specific cause, which requires strategic planning, management, and well-developed communication skills. With these activities, I've learned how to deal with any situation objectively. And these valuable experiences that have introduced me to new insights, have helped me to use different lenses to approach problems that need effective solutions. Attending college to be an economist, I'm looking for research and internship opportunities that offer experience on economics analysis and finance. Being able to have success in my higher education, will help me to achieve my goals.

I'm driven by my thirst of social impact and the representation of my Latino community. Breaking educational, financial and social paradigms, I want to learn more about economic research and the finance field, which are the areas that interest me the most.

thank you so much for you time!
